NEW YORK POLITICS.

The approaching battle in November is of vital importance, and as the readers of the CAPITAL JOURNAL desire a thorough knowledge of the entire field, it submits the following history of how the campaign is being conducted in New York:

This New York struggle has been and is peculiar, and its growing importance and earnestness show the good faith and persistence of the republicans of the greatest state in the union on the temperance issue. Our coming state campaign will attract the attention of the whole country, and the respective attitudes of the two parties will be the best answer to the idiotic and baseless charge that the republican party is for "Free Whiskey." It cannot be said that the republican campaign here has been directed with a view to achieving this result, for the fight between republican legislatures and Gov. Hill on the high license issue has been as radical as it could well be for at least two years past. He has been sustained by his party and party organs in vetoing every bill in the interests of temperance, no matter how moderate. He has been recognized by the entire organization of liquor dealers as their most servicable and unscrupulous servant.

In making high license the issue on which Warner Miller is to run for governor the republicans simply stick to their old fight and show that they mean to defy the gigantic liquor interests in this state and to appeal to the temperance sentiments of the people who are so heavily taxed to support the drunkards, paupers, criminals, lunatics, widows and orphans that are the results of the liquor traffic.

A campaign so conducted, with such a candidate for governor as Warner Miller, cannot fail to stir up the intelligent and conscientious voters of this state as they have not been stirred up for many years. Circumstances have combined to make the republican side of this high license issue peculiarly strong and inspiring. Their candidate is admirably calculated to put into such a campaign a moral power that will be felt all over the state.

The issue in this great state will be seen by everybody to be between reasonable restriction of the liquor traffic and as near an approach to "Free Whiskey" as the liquor interests themselves want to secure. What a splendid campaign it will be!

A NEW YORK man hung himself because his wife would not give him seven cents with which to buy beer. It is not often that worthless husbands are wise enough to rate themselves as low as seven cents.

The Congaree river, S. C., overflowed its banks a few days ago and destroyed thousands of acres of corn and cotton. Oregon has a rainy reputation but such loss never did occur here.

STATE FAIR.

The state fair beginning next Monday and continuing throughout the week, promises to be one of the best exhibitions ever held upon these fair grounds. The people of Salem, Marion county, and in fact of the entire state, are moving in the matter, and with no drawbacks it will most assuredly be a success. The horse show never promised better. The same may be said of cattle, and in fact of all other classes of stock. Oregon, this year, has her usual good crop of both fruits and cereals and if properly represented will make an exhibit unsurpassed in any other state or county.

The other branches of industry are as well represented and the display, this writer is informed, has never been equaled. The number of trials of speed on the program will make that feature of the fair very attractive. The best horses on the coast are expected to enter these contests. The management have done and are making the most diligent exertions to accommodate all exhibitors and make the affair pleasant and profitable for both those who contest for the prizes and the visitors. Mr. Gregg, the secretary, aided by the efficient board of directors, are deserving much credit for the amount of work they are accomplishing for the welfare of the state; and especially in the interest of agriculture.

Let everybody go, and let every one bring something to assist in making the show the grandest success.

The magnitude of the campaign in Indiana was never so great as at this time. A late telegram says: The outside public may gain some faint idea of the magnitude of the great political battle that is just getting fairly under way in every township and county in Indiana when it is learned that the democracy has 2500 local speakers throughout the state who have already canvassed their own counties and are now exchanging with adjoining counties. The majority of this army of orators are assigned for speeches every night in the week for two and three weeks ahead, when a new assignment will be made. The democratic state committee facilities work by arranging the assignments for local speakers through district and county committees.

The list of local speakers on the books of the republican state committee is not complete as yet, but 1500 names are listed, which is an average of nearly fifteen to each of the ninety-two counties. The work of assigning dates and places for the host of speakers is largely done by state committee. Both committees have large document-rooms, where campaign congressional literature may be seen by the ton. The documents arrive and depart almost daily by the wagon-load. It is expected that Judge Thurman will attend about a dozen meetings in Indiana.

An exchange tells of a party of thirty-one young men who left Indiana for Colville, W. T., where they will form a stock company for the purpose of carrying on a stock ranch. A peculiar feature of their agreement is that no member of the firm can draw his money out of the general fund during the first five years after the date of organization. Any one leaving the business will forfeit his investment of $500, which is the sum put in by each member. The young men will do their own herding, branding and dealing, and will thus be enabled to avoid the expense of cowboys.

As a result of one year of high license in Minnesota the number of saloons has been reduced from 2806 to 1897. A decrease in the consumption of liquor has been shown in almost every county, while the low groggeries have been closed and the liquor traffic generally has been brought under better police regulation. The people of Minnesota have about concluded that high license is a success.

The house committee on post-offices and post roads have decided to report favorably on the bill authorizing a new lock for registered mail pouches, the postmaster general having represented that the locks now used for registered mail were not adequate to prevent depredations on this class of mail.

The annual influx of the fakir tribe is upon us and the confidence individuals close up in the rear and watching for an opportunity to do up the public. Marshal Ross has both eyes open and they are big enough to take in the entire situation.

STATE NEWS.

The Monumental mine near Baker City was recently sold to an English syndicate.

Daniel Haas, an employe of Henry Stover, on Birch Creek, Umatilla county, suicided at that place last Saturday.

Pendleton board of trade has sent a delegate to Washington City to interview the authorities there on the opening of the Umatilla reservation.

The Northwest says that Pendleton is getting ready for a grand boom; property and people are looking up. Don't know about a boom, but our citizens are always on the alert and will take advantage of any opportunities that may happen this way.

The news from Vermont was not calculated to make the democracy happy. It will be a tidal wave on the 6th of November.

The school book question will be settled again this fall for the next four years by the various county school superintendents.

J. D. WILCOX and C. H. Meisaacs have been duly indicted by the grand jury of Multnomah county, for an attempt to extort money from Mrs. Dr. Murray.

The misguided or thoughtless young lady, Miss Annie Tuttle of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was to have married T. Baine, a Chinaman, finally decided not to do it.

The city council did a good thing last evening when they ordered the bridge built across Mill creek. Another good move will be the building of the sewer down Marion street.

A Queer Haal.

A queer catch from Yaquina was unloaded at the depot yesterday way-billed to parties in Salem. It consisted of a sea serpent, a devil fish, a cuttle fish and some other curiosities of the briny deep. The thing called a sea serpent when stretched out was about six or eight feet long and resembled a snake or lizard except its head, which looked more like that of a seal. They were caught by fishermen at Yaquina and will be taken to Salem and will probably be placed on exhibition at the state fair. The serpent was an ugly looking fellow calculated to produce a shudder on the part of those who saw it, and to produce bad dreams for a week.—Albany Herald.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

The American Medical Association unanimously voted in favor of scientific temperance instruction in the public schools.

It is a cruel thing to send a boy out into the world untaught that alcohol in any form is poison. It is a cruel thing to educate a boy in such a way that he has no adequate idea of the dangers which beset his path.—Dr. F. G. Holland.

Some may ask, "well, what have you done?" I answer, "nothing!" But if it is asked "what have you begun?" I answer, "everything." The work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will not be done

"Till the stars are old
And the sun is cold,
And the leaves of the judgment book unfold."

A work that touches so many of the interests of humanity, not only in this world, but in the world to come, cannot be finished until He shall come whose right it is to reign, and upon whose shoulders all government shall rest.

CAROLINE B. BUELL.

The Responsibility of the People.

The great sorrow of Caleb and Joshua must have been that God's own children not only doubted him but treated with scorn those who spoke in His name; and sadder of all to these noble two, must have been the thought of what the people were losing, and the punishment that would follow their weakness and disobedience. Truly, herein lies the heaviest heart-grief of the wide-voiced, humanity-loving temperance workers of to-day. As the awful glory of the Lord suddenly appeared in the tabernacle of the congregation, and His stern message of rebuke and decree came to the people through Moses, so we may be sure that God will punish our nation for its lack of faith in that it does not go forward in His name, and put away the wrong of the legalized drink traffic.

Some high party officials have joined in the hue and cry against Mrs. Hunt. Mrs. Hannah Whitehall Smith sends us her noble and conclusive defense of Mrs. Mary Hunt, whose work for Scientific Temperance in the schools is generally known. No sooner had she with extraordinary effort obtained a bill for this temperance instruction in a state, than she found the great publishing houses were issuing text books advocating the moderate use of alcohol and tobacco. Mrs. Hunt flew to the rescue, denounced the books as dangerous and unfit for use. The publishers maintained that the text books that she endorsed were radical and would not sell, and charged her with mercenary motives in desiring these radical books known as the Pathfinder series. Mrs. Smith proves Mrs. Hunt to be in no sense connected with the profits of the books, but on the contrary shows how she has at great personal loss obtained such books as she can endorse.—W. H. Mission.

Men's and Women's Bases.

Joints and muscles may escape the agonizing tortures of rheumatism if they will but "take time by the forelock," and annihilate the symptoms of oncoming trouble with the benignant and highly sanctioned blood purifier and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Poisons mostly constitute the ordinary means of battling with this atrocious complaint. Avoid the risk of using these by resorting to the safe as well as effectual anti-phlogistic and preventive. After exposure to damp, through drafts and other causes which encourage a rheumatic tendency, a wineglassful of the Bitters prevents ill effects. No safer preventive of malarial ailments like fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake exists, and it is, besides, a most potent recuperator of strength exhausted by excessive mental or physical effort. Miners, mariners, operatives and others whose avocations involve laborious work in rough weather out of doors, or close application indoors, find it invaluable.
